

Vermont Licensed Facilities

Definition of types of facilities from the State of Vermont Division of Licensing & Protection (<http://www.dail.state.vt.us/lp/>), a division of the Agency of Human Services - Department of Disabilities, Aging & Independent Living (DAIL). A list of Licensed Facilities outside of CVAA's four-county area can be found on the Division's website.

Nursing Homes provide nursing care and related services for people who need nursing, medical, rehabilitation, or other special services. They are licensed by the State and may be certified to participate in the Medicaid and/or Medicare programs. Certain nursing homes may also meet specific standards for subacute care or dementia care.

Residential care homes are State licensed group living arrangements designed to meet the needs of people who can not live independently and usually do not require the type of care provided in a nursing home. When needed, help is provided with daily activities such as eating, walking, toileting, bathing, and dressing. Residential care homes may provide nursing home level of care to residents under certain conditions. Daily rates at residential care homes are usually less than rates at nursing homes.

Residential care homes are divided into two groups, depending upon the level of care they provide.

- Level III homes provide nursing overview, but not full-time nursing care
- Level IV homes do not provide nursing overview or nursing care

There are Level III homes that are also designated as Enhanced Residential Care (ERC) providers which is a program that allows the residential care home to have a designated number of beds that are occupied by residents that need a higher level of care.

Assisted Living Facilities are State licensed residences that combine housing, health and supportive services to support resident independence and aging in place. At a minimum, assisted living residences shall offer, within a homelike setting, a private bedroom, private bath, living space, kitchen capacity, and a lockable door. Assisted living shall promote resident self-direction and active participation in decision-making while emphasizing individuality, privacy and dignity. Assisted Living Facilities must meet the Licensing Regulations effective 3/15/2003 as well as the Residential Care Home Licensing Regulations which are designed to protect the welfare and rights of residents to ensure that residents receive quality care.
